中考英语完形填空：帮同学准备英语课前演讲

完形填空原文

My classmate Wang Lin was nervous about the English speech before class. Every week, one student has to give a short speech in front of the class. It was his 1 next Tuesday. He asked me to help him prepare because my English was better.

We met after school in the library. First, I helped him choose a 2. He liked sports, so we decided on "My Favorite Soccer Player". Then we wrote an outline together. I told him to keep the speech short—about two or three minutes. He shouldn't try to 3 too much in such limited time.

Next, we practiced the pronunciation of difficult words. Wang Lin had trouble with "professional" and "championship". I read them aloud and he repeated after me. We did this many 4 until he could say them correctly. I also suggested he use some body language to make his speech more 5. For example, he could use hand gestures when talking about scores.

We rehearsed the whole speech several times. Each time, I gave him some 6. At first, he spoke too fast. I told him to slow down and take a breath between sentences. He improved a lot. By the third practice, he was much more 7.

On Tuesday, Wang Lin gave his speech. He did a great job! The teacher praised him and the classmates applauded. After class, he came to thank me. He said, "Without your help, I wouldn't have 8 it. Thank you so much!" I felt happy to help. Helping others also helps 9 learn. When we teach, we understand things better. I hope more classmates will come to me when they need 10. It's a pleasure to share what I know.
