中考英语完形填空：学做雪花剪纸

完形填空原文

Paper cutting is a traditional Chinese art. Last weekend, our art teacher taught us how to make snowflake paper cuts. December had just begun, and everyone wanted to 1 the classroom for winter.

First, the teacher gave each of us a square piece of white paper. She showed us how to fold it into a triangle shape, and then fold it 2 two more times. The folding part was not difficult, but we had to be neat. If the edges were not 3, the snowflake would not look good.

Next came the cutting part. The teacher drew some simple patterns on the board and asked us to 4 our own designs on the folded paper. I drew small curves and triangles along the edges. Then I carefully cut along the lines with scissors. I had to be very 5 because one wrong cut could ruin the whole piece.

When I unfolded my paper, I was amazed. A beautiful six-pointed snowflake 6 in my hands. Every student's snowflake was different—some had stars, some had circles, and some had heart shapes. The teacher said that was the 7 of paper cutting: no two pieces are exactly the same.

We hung our snowflakes on the windows with tape. When the sunlight came 8, the white snowflakes looked like real ones falling from the sky. The whole classroom became warm and beautiful. Some students even made extra snowflakes to give to their 9.

I learned that paper cutting needs both patience and creativity. A simple piece of paper can become a work of art if you put your 10 into it. I want to learn more paper-cutting skills and make decorations for every season.
