完形填空原文

With the end of the semester approaching, our school organized a big cleaning day last Friday. Every class was responsible for cleaning their own classroom and a part of the school's public areas. Our class was 1 to clean the science laboratory.

Our class monitor divided us into four groups. My group was in charge of wiping the desks and washing the lab equipment. Another group swept and mopped the 2. The third group cleaned the windows, and the fourth group organized the bookshelves and cabinets.

At first, the lab looked messy. There were dust and stains everywhere because the lab had not been deeply cleaned for a long time. I put on my rubber gloves and started wiping the desks with a wet cloth. The stains were very 3 to remove, so I had to scrub hard. My arms felt tired after just fifteen minutes.

My partner Xiao Ming was washing the glass bottles and test tubes. He was very 4 because they were fragile and could break easily. He washed each one slowly and placed them neatly on the drying rack. I admired his patience.

After two hours of hard work, the lab was completely 5. The desks were shining, the floor was spotless, and all the equipment was arranged in 6. Our teacher came to check and said she could hardly believe it was the same room.

The cleaning day was tiring, but it gave us a sense of 7. When we looked at the clean lab, we all felt happy. Our teacher said that taking care of our learning environment is just as important as 8 for exams.

I think she is right. A clean and organized space helps us think more 9 and study more efficiently. I will try to keep my own desk clean every day from now on. Good habits start with small 10.
