中考英语完形填空：学做红豆沙

完形填空原文

On a cold winter afternoon, my grandma asked if I wanted to learn how to make red bean paste (红豆沙). I was very 1 because I loved eating it in sweet soup and pastries.

Grandma first showed me how to wash the red beans and 2 them in water for at least four hours. "This step is very important," she said. "If we skip it, the beans will be hard to cook." I 3 carefully and wrote down everything in my notebook.

The next day, we put the beans in a pot and added plenty of water. We cooked them over low heat for about two hours. I had to 4 the pot from time to time to prevent it from burning. The smell was wonderful—sweet and warm.

When the beans became soft, we mashed them with a spoon and added sugar. Grandma said we should add the sugar 5, tasting as we went, because everyone has different preferences. I followed her 6 and the paste turned out just right.

Making red bean paste was 7 than I had expected. It needed patience and care. But when I tasted the final product, I felt a great sense of 8. Grandma smiled and said, "Now you can make it for your family."

I'm grateful for this 9 with my grandma. She not only taught me a recipe but also passed on her love for traditional food. I hope to make red bean paste for my friends someday and 10 this warmth with them.
