参考范文

Saturday, October 18th Sunny

Today was my 15th birthday, and it turned out to be the most special one I've ever had.

I expected the usual — a cake, a song, maybe a few messages from friends. But when I got home from school, the house was empty. No decorations, no cake. I felt a little disappointed. Then Mom appeared, holding her car keys, and said with a mysterious smile, "Let's go. Your birthday present is waiting."

She drove me to a small pottery studio downtown. I had never tried pottery before. The instructor showed us how to shape the clay on the spinning wheel. At first, my cup kept collapsing, and my hands were covered in wet clay. Mom's wasn't much better — hers looked more like a bowl than a cup. We laughed so hard that the other customers turned to look at us. After two hours, we each finished a piece. They were far from perfect, but they were ours.

On the drive home, Mom handed me a letter. She had written it by hand, telling me how proud she was of the person I was becoming. My eyes filled with tears as I read it.

This birthday had no party, no expensive present. But it gave me something money can't buy — a memory I'll treasure forever. The best birthday gift isn't something you unwrap. It's the time you spend with the people you love.

全文翻译

10 月 18 日 星期六 晴

今天是我 15 岁的生日，结果成了我过过的最特别的一个。

我以为会和往常一样——一个蛋糕、一首歌、也许几条朋友的祝福。但放学回家后，家里空空如也。没有装饰，没有蛋糕。我有点失望。然后妈妈出现了，拿着车钥匙，带着一个神秘的微笑说："走吧，你的生日礼物在等着。"

她开车带我去了市区一家小陶艺工作室。我以前从没做过陶艺。老师教我们怎么在旋转的拉坯机上塑形。一开始我的杯子总是塌掉，手上全是湿泥。妈妈的也好不到哪去——她做的更像碗而不是杯子。我们笑得太大声了，其他顾客都转头看我们。两个小时后，我们各完成了一件作品。它们远称不上完美，但它们是我们的。

回家的路上，妈妈递给我一封信。她用手写的方式告诉我，她有多为我正在成为的人感到骄傲。读着信，我的眼睛湿润了。

这个生日没有派对，没有昂贵的礼物。但它给了我金钱买不到的东西——一个我会永远珍藏的回忆。最好的生日礼物不是你拆开的东西，而是你和你爱的人一起度过的时光。
