参考范文

A Day Without My Phone

Last month, I found myself checking my phone dozens of times a day. I couldn't help scrolling through social media every few minutes, and I knew something had to change. So I decided to try a day without my phone — and it turned out to be one of the most valuable days of my life.

That Saturday morning, I left my phone in a drawer and didn't touch it until the next day. At first, I felt a little anxious, as if I was missing something important. But soon, I picked up a novel I had bought months ago and actually finished it. I helped my mother prepare lunch and had a long conversation with my grandmother — something I hadn't done in ages. In the afternoon, I went for a walk in the park and noticed the birds, the trees, and the sky for the first time in weeks.

What surprised me was how much time I had. Without notifications constantly pulling me back, my mind felt calm and clear. I realized that I had been living half in the real world and half in a small screen — and the real world was far more beautiful.

Sometimes we need to disconnect from our phones to reconnect with life.

全文翻译

没有手机的一天

上个月，我发现自己每天要看手机几十次。每隔几分钟就忍不住刷社交媒体，我知道必须做出改变了。于是我决定尝试一天不用手机——结果那成了我生命中最有价值的一天之一。

那个周六早上，我把手机放进抽屉，直到第二天才碰它。起初我有点焦虑，仿佛错过了什么重要的事。但很快，我拿起几个月前买的小说，竟然读完了。我帮妈妈准备午饭，和奶奶聊了很久——这样的事情我已经好久没做了。下午我去公园散步，几个星期来第一次注意到鸟儿、树木和天空。

让我惊讶的是，我有那么多时间。没有通知不断把我拉回去，我的心变得平静而清明。我意识到自己一半活在真实世界，一半活在小小的屏幕里——而真实世界远更美好。

有时候我们需要断开手机，才能重新连接生活。
