04-05 第2篇

阅读理解（记叙文）

① I will never forget my 14th birthday. It was a Saturday, but it started terrible. In the morning, it rained heavily. My parents had told me they would take me to the amusement park (游乐园), but bad weather ruined (毁掉) our plan. I sat by the window, feeling very sad and disappointed.

② "I'm sorry, dear," my mom said, clearly noticing my tears. "We can't go out in such heavy rain. We will celebrate it at home." "It's okay," I sighed, though inside I felt my special day was completely ruined.

③ I went back to my room and read a book alone. Hours passed. Around 6:00 PM, my father knocked on my door. "Dinner is ready," he said. When I walked into the dining room, I was completely shocked! The room was decorated (装饰) with beautiful balloons and colorful lights.

④ But the biggest surprise was sitting around the table. My grandparents, who lived in another city, were there! "Surprise! Happy birthday!" they shouted together. My best friends, Lisa and Jack, were also there smiling at me. It turned out that my parents had planned this secret party for weeks. They invited my loved ones over and prepared my favorite chocolate cake.

⑤ We ate, laughed, and played games together. The house was filled with warmth and joy. I realized that a wonderful birthday didn't need a trip to the amusement park. Having the people I love around me was the best gift ever. It was the most perfect day.

注释： amusement park 游乐园；ruin 毁掉；disappointed 失望的；decorate 装饰
