A Speech I Will Never Forget

① It was the last day of junior high school. The graduation ceremony was held in the school hall. Hundreds of students, teachers, and parents sat quietly, waiting for the speeches. I felt both excited and a little sad. Excited because we were about to start a new journey. Sad because we would say goodbye to our friends and teachers.

② Then it was Tom's turn. Tom was one of the best students in our class. He walked slowly to the stage. His hands were shaking. He took a deep breath and began to speak. "Three years ago, I came to this school as a shy boy. I was afraid to talk to anyone. I thought I would spend the whole three years alone," he said. His voice was soft but clear. The hall became very quiet. Everyone listened carefully.

③ "But on my first day, a boy named Jack sat next to me. He smiled and said, 'Hi, I'm Jack. Want to be friends?' That simple question changed everything. Jack introduced me to other classmates. We studied together, laughed together, and helped each other when things were difficult. Because of him, I learned that friendship can turn the darkest days into the brightest ones."

④ Tom's eyes became red. "Today, we are leaving this school. We may go to different high schools. But I want to say to every one of you: thank you. Thank you for being my friends. Thank you for the memories we shared. Wherever we go, these memories will stay in our hearts forever." When he finished, the whole hall stood up and clapped. Many students had tears in their eyes, including me.

⑤ That speech made me understand something important. School is not only a place to learn. It is also a place where we find friends who stay with us for life. I will never forget Tom's words and the warm feeling in the hall that day.
