阅读理解（议论文）

① Paper Books or Audiobooks: Which Is Better for Learning?

② Today, students have more ways to read than ever before. They can choose paper books or audiobooks (有声书). Which one is better for learning? Different people have different opinions.

③ Those who prefer paper books say that reading with your eyes helps you remember better. When you hold a book and turn the pages, your brain works in a special way. You can easily underline (画线) important sentences or write notes in the margins (页边空白). Paper books do not need batteries or the Internet. You can read them anywhere, even in places with no electricity. Some studies show that students who read paper books often get higher marks in exams.

⑤ The conclusion: There is no single best way. Paper books may work better when you need to focus and take notes. Audiobooks are useful when you want to use spare time or practice listening. Smart learners often use both. Choose the way that fits your situation best.

注释： underline 画线；margins 页边空白；narrator 朗读者；distracted 分心
