07-21 第2篇

阅读理解（记叙文）

① When Lin Xia first stepped into the English speaking class, her heart was pounding (砰砰跳). She was a quiet girl who rarely spoke in class. The teacher, Mr. Chen, asked each student to introduce themselves in English. When it was Lin Xia's turn, her face turned red and her voice trembled (颤抖). She could barely say a few words before she sat down, feeling embarrassed.

② Mr. Chen noticed Lin Xia's nervousness. After class, he talked to her and said, "Everyone makes mistakes. The more you practice, the better you'll become." He suggested that she try speaking for just one minute every day in front of a mirror. Lin Xia decided to give it a try. At first, she felt silly talking to herself, but slowly she grew more comfortable with the sounds of English.

③ Week by week, Lin Xia practiced. She joined a small group in class where students helped each other. Her group mates were kind and never laughed when she made mistakes. They encouraged her to share her opinions. One day, when the topic was "My Favorite Place," Lin Xia spoke for two full minutes about a park near her home. She was surprised at herself. So was Mr. Chen, who gave her a thumbs up.

④ By the end of the term, Lin Xia had become one of the most active speakers in class. She even volunteered to give a short speech about her summer trip. Her classmates clapped warmly when she finished. Lin Xia realized that the key was not to be perfect but to keep trying. Making mistakes was part of learning.

⑤ Looking back, Lin Xia said, "I used to think speaking English was too scary. Now I know that practice and courage matter more than being perfect. If I could change, anyone can." She hopes to help other shy students find their voice one day.

注释： pound 砰砰跳；tremble 颤抖； embarrassed 尴尬的；volunteer 自愿；courage 勇气
