① Should Schools Cancel Final Exams?

② In recent years, some schools have tried to cancel or reduce final exams (期末考试). They believe exams cause too much stress (压力) for students. But many teachers and parents disagree. They think exams are still necessary. Let us look at both sides of the argument.

⑤ The conclusion: There is no simple answer. Both sides have good points. Perhaps the best way is to find a balance. Schools could reduce the number of exams or make them less stressful. They could also mix exams with other ways of assessment (评估), such as projects and class discussions. The goal should be to help students learn well without making them too stressed or tired.

注释： stress 压力；assessment 评估

1. According to the passage, why do some people want to cancel final exams? A. Because exams cause stress, students may stay up late, and a single exam may not show real learning; they prefer using class work and projects instead. B. Because exams are too easy. C. Because there are too many teachers. D. Because students prefer to take exams on computers.

2. What do supporters of keeping exams believe? A. Exams are useless and should never be used. B. Exams help students review, work harder, and prepare for future tests like the high school entrance exam. C. Only the best students should take exams. D. Exams should only be given once every five years.

3. According to the passage, how can exams prepare students for the future? A. They help students get better jobs immediately. B. They help students travel abroad. C. They help students get used to taking important tests and dealing with pressure, which they will face in real life. D. They help students make more friends.

4. What does the writer suggest as a solution? A. Cancel all exams in every school. B. Give more exams to make students work harder. C. Let students decide whether to take exams or not. D. Find a balance: reduce exams or make them less stressful, and mix exams with projects and class discussions.

5. What can we infer from the passage? A. The writer believes that exams should be completely removed from all schools. B. The writer thinks both sides have valid points and a balanced approach may work best. C. The writer thinks that stress is always bad for students. D. The writer believes that only exams can show what students have learned.
