07-27 第2篇

阅读理解（记叙文）

① Li Ming loved spending time in the school library. One Tuesday afternoon, he was looking for a book on the history shelf when he noticed something unusual. An old diary lay behind a few thick books. Its cover was dusty and the pages had turned yellow. He wondered who had left it there and how long it had been hidden.

② Li Ming picked up the diary carefully. On the first page, he saw a name: Wang Xiaomei, Class 3, Grade 2, 2008. It had been left there sixteen years ago! He started to read. The diary described simple daily life: classes, homework, friends, and small dreams. Wang Xiaomei wrote about her wish to become a teacher one day. She also wrote about her best friend and the fun they had together.

③ Li Ming felt touched. He wanted to find the owner. He asked the librarian if there were any records of students from 2008. The librarian smiled and said, "I remember Wang Xiaomei. She's now a teacher at a primary school in our city. She often comes back to visit the library." She gave Li Ming a phone number.

④ That evening, Li Ming called Wang Xiaomei. When he told her about the diary, she was very surprised and happy. "I thought I had lost it forever!" she said. "Thank you for finding it. Would you like to meet? I'd like to thank you in person."

⑤ The next Saturday, Wang Xiaomei came to the school. She and Li Ming met in the library. She thanked him and said, "This diary reminds me of my teenage years. You've done something wonderful." Li Ming felt proud. A simple act of returning a lost item had brought joy to someone and made a new friend.
