Staying Safe in the Summer Heat

Summer brings sunshine, holidays, and outdoor fun. But when temperatures rise, the heat can also bring risks— dehydration（脱水）, heat exhaustion, and even heatstroke（中暑）if we are not careful. [1] That is why it is important to know how to stay safe and enjoy the warm months without harm. Whether you are playing sports, walking in the city, or relaxing at the beach, a few simple habits can protect you and your family. This article will help you understand the dangers of summer heat and how to prevent them.

Stay cool and hydrated. [2] Drink plenty of water throughout the day—do not wait until you feel thirsty, because thirst is already a sign that your body needs water. Avoid too many sweet or caffeine-heavy drinks; they can make you lose more water. Wear light-coloured, loose clothes that let your skin breathe. When it is very hot, try to stay in the shade, use a fan, or spend time in air-conditioned places. Take rest breaks if you are active outdoors. Children and older people need extra attention because their bodies cope with heat less easily. Small steps like these can keep you comfortable and safe.

Recognise the signs of heat illness. [3] Heat exhaustion can make you feel dizzy, weak, and tired; your skin may be pale and sweaty. If you or someone else has these signs, move to a cool place, drink water, and rest. Heatstroke is more serious—the person may stop sweating, have a high fever, feel confused, or even faint. Heatstroke is a medical emergency: call for help at once, move the person to shade, loosen their clothes, and cool them with wet cloths or a cool bath while waiting for help. Knowing these signs can save a life. Do not ignore early warning—acting quickly matters.

Plan outdoor activities wisely. [4] Avoid being outside during the hottest hours—usually between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.—when the sun is strongest. If you must be outdoors, wear a hat and sunscreen, and take frequent breaks in the shade. Never leave children or pets in a parked car, even for a few minutes; the temperature inside can rise dangerously fast. When exercising, start slowly and gradually increase intensity. Listen to your body—if you feel unwell, stop and rest. A little planning can prevent most heat-related problems and let you enjoy summer safely.

[5] Summer heat can be enjoyable when we respect it and prepare well. Drink water, stay cool, know the signs of heat illness, and plan your activities wisely. Share these tips with your family and friends—everyone deserves a safe and happy summer. The warm months are meant for fun, not for trips to the hospital. With the right knowledge, you can make the most of the sunshine and avoid the dangers. Stay cool and stay safe!

- [1] A：
  - 线索：空前描述"Summer brings sunshine, holidays, outdoor fun...But temperatures rise...heat can bring risks—dehydration, heat exhaustion, heatstroke...if not careful"，空后说明"Whether playing sports, walking city, relaxing beach...few simple habits protect you, family...dangers...how prevent"。A选项"That is why it is important to know how to stay safe and enjoy the warm months without harm"（因此了解如何在炎热季节安全享受很重要）中"That is why"承接空前因果，"stay safe...enjoy...without harm"与空后"simple habits protect...prevent dangers"精准呼应，衔接顺畅。
- [2] B：
  - 线索：空前提出"Stay cool and hydrated"，空后详述"Drink plenty water...do not wait until thirsty...thirst sign need water...Avoid sweet, caffeine drinks...lose more water...Wear light-coloured, loose clothes...skin breathe...Very hot—shade, fan, air-conditioned...Rest breaks if active outdoors...Children, older people extra attention...cope with heat less easily...Small steps...comfortable, safe"。B选项"Drink water regularly, wear light loose clothes, stay in shade when very hot, and take rest breaks—extra care for children and the elderly"（规律饮水、穿轻便宽松衣物、炎热时待在阴凉处、适当休息——对儿童和老人要格外关照）中"drink water...light loose clothes...shade...rest breaks...children, elderly"与空后内容完美对应，逻辑紧密。
- [3] C：
  - 线索：空前提出"Recognise the signs of heat illness"，空后列举"Heat exhaustion—dizzy, weak, tired...pale, sweaty...move cool place, drink water, rest...Heatstroke more serious—stop sweating, high fever, confused, faint...medical emergency—call help...move shade, loosen clothes, cool wet cloths, cool bath...Knowing signs save life...Do not ignore early warning...acting quickly matters"。C选项"Heat exhaustion causes dizziness and weakness; heatstroke is an emergency—recognise the signs, act quickly, and call for help when needed"（热衰竭导致头晕无力；中暑是急症——识别症状、迅速行动、必要时呼叫救援）中"exhaustion...dizziness, weakness...heatstroke emergency...recognise...act quickly...call help"与空后内容精准对应，衔接自然。

- [4] D：
  - 线索：空前提出"Plan outdoor activities wisely"，空后描述"Avoid outdoors hottest hours—10 a.m.—4 p.m....sun strongest...Must be outdoors—hat, sunscreen, breaks shade...Never leave children, pets in parked car...few minutes...temperature rise dangerously fast...Exercising—start slowly, increase gradually...Listen to body...unwell—stop, rest...Little planning prevent most heat problems...enjoy safely"。D选项"Avoid the hottest hours, wear hat and sunscreen, never leave anyone in a parked car, and listen to your body when exercising"（避开最热时段、戴帽涂防晒、绝不在停车场留人、运动时倾听身体信号）中"avoid hottest hours...hat, sunscreen...never leave in car...listen to body"与空后表述完美对应，衔接得当。
- [5] E：
  - 线索：空[5]位于结尾段段首，空后为"Summer heat can be enjoyable when we respect it and prepare well. Drink water, stay cool, know the signs of heat illness, and plan your activities wisely. Share these tips with your family and friends—everyone deserves a safe and happy summer. The warm months are meant for fun, not for trips to the hospital. With the right knowledge, you can make the most of the sunshine and avoid the dangers. Stay cool and stay safe!"。E选项"With the right habits—hydration, cooling, recognising signs, and smart planning—summer can be safe and enjoyable for everyone"（通过正确习惯——补水、降温、识别症状、合理规划——夏天对每个人都可以安全又愉快）用"right habits...hydration, cooling, signs, planning...safe, enjoyable"总结主题，与空后"respect, prepare...drink, stay cool, know signs, plan...safe, happy"形成呼应，收束精准。
- 干扰项分析：
  - F. For example, some cities open cooling centres where people can rest indoors when it is very hot.：涉及城市开设纳凉中心，易被误填[2]或[4]。但F以"For example"引出市政措施，而空[2]讨论个人防暑（饮水、穿衣、阴凉、休息），F的"cooling centres"属于公共设施，与"drink water...wear clothes...shade...rest"的个人行为焦点不同；空[4]讨论户外活动规划（时段、防晒、车里不留人），F未涉及活动安排。F属"主题相关但论述层次错位"型干扰。
