12-02 第二篇

Theater and Drama: Stories Brought to Life

Theater has been a part of human culture for thousands of years. Before movies and TV, people gathered to watch actors perform stories on stage. Today, theater still thrives—from school plays to Broadway musicals to local community performances. Unlike screen entertainment, theater happens live: every performance is unique, and the audience shares the same moment with the actors. [1]

A theater production involves many people working together. Actors memorize lines and rehearse for weeks or months. Directors guide the overall vision of the show. Set designers create the stage scenery. Costume and lighting teams add to the atmosphere. Behind the scenes, stage managers keep everything running smoothly. [2]

For the audience, attending a play is a special experience. You sit in a darkened room, and when the lights come up, you enter another world. You laugh, feel tense, or get moved—all in real time, with real people in front of you. There is no pause button; you experience the story as it unfolds. [3]

Theater also helps develop important skills, especially for young people. Acting builds confidence and public speaking ability. Working on a production teaches teamwork and discipline. Understanding scripts and characters improves reading and empathy. Many schools use drama as a tool for learning. [4]

Theater may not be as popular as movies or streaming shows, but it offers something they cannot: the magic of live performance. Whether you are watching a classic play or a new work, theater connects us to stories, emotions, and each other in a way that screens simply cannot match. [5]

选项

A. Theater remains unique because it offers live, shared experiences that cannot be repeated—each show is a one-time event for both performers and audience. B. It takes a whole team of dedicated people to turn a script into a show that audiences will remember. C. This immediacy and connection make theater a powerful and memorable form of storytelling. D. Through drama, students gain skills that go far beyond the stage and help them in many areas of life. E. In an age of screens, theater reminds us that some of the best stories are still told face to face. F. For example, Shakespeare's plays have been performed for over 400 years and are still staged in theaters worldwide.

答案键（Answer Key）

[1] A [2] B [3] C [4] D [5] E

深度解析

- [1] A：
  - 线索：空前介绍戏剧千年历史、先于影视、今仍兴盛、与荧幕不同在于现场、每场独特、观众与演员共享当下，空后需总结戏剧的现场独特性。A的"remains unique because it offers live, shared experiences"与"theater happens live"呼应，"each show is a one-time event"与前文"every performance is unique"对应。
- [2] B：
  - 线索：空前列举制作团队——演员背词排练、导演把控、布景设计、服装灯光、舞台监督，空后需总结团队协作。B的"It takes a whole team of dedicated people"与前文对应，"turn a script into a show that audiences will remember"概括制作目标。
- [3] C：
  - 线索：空前描述观众体验——黑暗剧院、灯光亮起进入另一世界、实时喜怒哀乐、无暂停、随剧情展开，空后需总结这种即时性。C的"This immediacy and connection"指代前文，"powerful and memorable form of storytelling"与前文呼应。
- [4] D：
  - 线索：空前说戏剧培养能力——表演提升自信与口才、参与制作学合作与纪律、理解剧本与角色提升阅读与共情、学校用戏剧教学，空后需总结教育价值。D的"Through drama, students gain skills"与前文对应，"go far beyond the stage"与前文多方面能力呼应。
- [5] E：
  - 线索：空前对比戏剧与影视、强调戏剧提供荧幕无法替代的现场魔力、联结故事情感与人，空后需总结戏剧的当代意义。E的"In an age of screens"与前文对比，"some of the best stories are still told face to face"与前文"magic of live performance"呼应。
- 干扰项分析：
  - F. For example, Shakespeare's plays...：以For example开头，为具体戏剧案例。各空均为概括或过渡句；[1]易被误选因涉及经典戏剧，但该空需总结戏剧现场的独特性，而非补充某一剧作家的历史细节。