阅读理解（议论文） Are Smart Watches a Good Choice for Middle-School Students?

① These days, more and more middle-school students are wearing smart watches. Some parents are happy to buy them, because the watches can call home, count steps and even help children find their way. Others worry that smart watches may cause new problems. So, are smart watches really a good choice for students?

④ In my view, smart watches are tools, not toys. Students can use them, but there must be clear rules. Parents should buy watches with necessary functions such as calls and steps, not watches full of games. Schools can ask students to keep their watches silent during class, or to place them in a box at the classroom door. In this way, a smart watch stays smart, and students will not be controlled by it.
