阅读理解（应用文） Lihua Middle School Year-End Book-Swap Fair 2027

Lihua Middle School · Library + Chinese Department
Year-End Book-Swap Fair 2027 — "Let Your Good Books Keep Walking This Winter."
Date: Friday, 26 December 2027
Time: 13:00 — 17:00 (four hours, one afternoon)
Venue: Lihua Central Library (2F) + Sunlight Corridor (3F)
Cost: Zero money. Only books.

---

① Every student in our school owns, on average, 27 books. Every student, in her three middle-school years, reads maybe 9 of them a second time. The rest sit on a small shelf, quiet and loyal, growing a small layer of winter dust. On the last Friday of term, we invite you to give those books a second living year. The Year-End Book-Swap Fair uses no money at all: you bring a book you have finished; you take a book somebody else has finished. One for one. 812 students, one small library, hundreds of books walking in quiet circles. Nothing is bought. Nothing is sold. Books only walk.

📚 How the Swap Works (the only rule you must remember)

- One-for-one: for every book you bring in, you may take one book away. No exceptions.
- The book you bring must be: in readable condition (no torn pages, no bad smell, no marks that make reading impossible), written in Chinese or English, appropriate for Grades 7—9 (no inappropriate adult content).
- The book you take must be one from today's swap tables. Library books are not part of the swap.
- You may bring up to 5 books per student per afternoon (and therefore take up to 5 away).

🏷️ What to Do When You Arrive

Step	Where	What

1	Book-Check Desk (2F entrance)	Hand in your books. A student librarian checks each book for condition and genre, and gives you one green token per accepted book.
2	Token Window (2F)	Walk with your green tokens to the Swap Tables.
3	Swap Tables (2F + 3F)	Browse. Pick a book you want. Hand in a token. Keep the book.
4	Exit Desk (2F exit)	A second student librarian writes your name and your new book's title in the small Swap Ledger. This is kept for one year in case of mistakes.

📚 The Six Swap-Table Zones

Zone	Genre	Where
Zone A	Chinese literature (fiction, essays, poetry)	2F, east window
Zone B	English graded readers (Levels 2—4)	2F, centre
Zone C	Science & popular knowledge (astronomy, biology, history)	2F, west window
Zone D	History & biography (Chinese and world)	3F Sunlight Corridor, north
Zone E	Picture & comic books (for rest-reading, not exchange bonus)	3F Sunlight Corridor, south
Zone F	Old textbooks & workbooks (Grades 7—8, reference only)	3F staircase corner

- You may cross zones freely.
- One token works in any zone.
- If a book has no taker by 16:30, it moves to the "Share-for-Free Shelf" near the exit, where any student may take it without a token.

🌱 Care of Each Book

Before the swap, please do three small, kind things to the book you bring:

1. Erase your pencil notes — the next reader deserves a clean first look.
2. Write a small kind line on the back inside cover, e.g. "This book made me laugh on the bus home. I hope it makes you smile too. — A friend in Grade 7, Dec 2027."

3. Put a clean sticky note on the cover if any page has a tiny tear; do not hide small damage.

These three small acts turn the swap into something quietly human: every book carries, to its next home, a small whispered hello from a stranger who loved it first.

🕰️ Afternoon Schedule

Time	Activity	Where
12:45 — 13:00	Student librarians set up swap tables	2F + 3F
13:00	Opening chime from Head Librarian Ms Yu	2F entrance
13:00 — 15:30	Main swap (busiest window)	2F + 3F
14:30 — 15:00	Book-Recommendation Corner: 3 Grade-9 students share, for 3 minutes each, one book that changed them	2F centre stage
15:30 — 16:30	Quiet swap (recommended for shy students)	2F + 3F
16:30	Share-for-Free Shelf opens	2F exit
16:45 — 17:00	Final count and clean-up	2F + 3F

📖 Book-Recommendation Corner (14:30 — 15:00)

Three Grade-9 students, chosen by draw, each speak for three minutes on one book that changed them this year. This year's speakers and books:

Speaker	Grade	Book	Book language
Liang Yichen	9A	The Little Prince (《小王子》)	Chinese
Zhao Xinyue	9C	Charlotte's Web	English
Sun Jialuo	9D	活着 (To Live, abridged school edition)	Chinese

Students are welcome to listen, ask one question each, and then continue swapping. No applause signs, no filming, no scoring.

🚫 Quiet Forbidden Items (please do not bring)

- Textbooks currently in use this term (please keep for your own study).
- Any book with torn cover or missing pages.

- Any book with strong smell, wet marks, or yellow food stains.
- Any book marked "私人日记" (private diary) or similar personal writing.
- Any adult novel or any comic with violent / inappropriate content for middle school.

Books that do not pass the Book-Check Desk are gently returned; the student may still browse the swap tables but cannot take a book without a token.

🍵 Winter Kindness Table (3F Sunlight Corridor)

- Free warm ginger tea for all swappers (small paper cup, 100 ml, no sugar).
- Free hand-warmer cards for any student who is visibly cold.
- A small "Rest-Only Chair" area: if you do not want to swap, just come to read for 20 minutes.
- No phones please on the Kindness Table; reading and quiet only.

❗ Important Gentle Reminders

- The fair is totally voluntary. No student is required to come. No class is brought together.
- Nobody is ranked by the number of books she brings or takes. A student who brings one and takes one is as welcome as a student who brings five.
- A book that finds no taker is not a "bad" book. It may simply be waiting for another year. The Share-for-Free Shelf takes care of it.
- You may give a book to a specific friend. Write "for Xia Lin, 7B" on a sticky note on the cover; the Book-Check Desk will keep it and hand it to her when she arrives.
- Phones may be used only to take one photo of your new book and nothing else; no video, no short-video posting.

💬 A Small Word from the Library

> "A book is, perhaps, the only object in this school that is richer for being second-hand. Every small pencil mark, every carefully folded page-corner, every kind line written in the back cover, is a small quiet trace of a reader who walked this way before. On 26 December, for four quiet hours, we invite 812 students and one small library to let our loved books keep walking this winter. One for one. No money. Only books. Only kindness. Let us show that a school, at the end of a hard term, still knows how to share."

1. What are the date, time, place, cost, and the single most important rule of the Year-End Book-Swap Fair 2027?

A. Friday 26 December 2027 at the Lihua Central Library (2F) and the Sunlight Corridor (3F) from 13:00 to 17:00; the fair uses no money at all (only books), and the single rule is "one-for-one" — for every book a student brings in (in readable condition, Chinese or English, Grade-7—9 appropriate), she may take one book away, with up to 5 brought and 5 taken per student per afternoon.
B. Saturday 27 December, 09:00 — 18:00, cost ¥30 per book, at the sports hall.
C. A one-week event where books are sold at 50% off.
D. A mandatory book-buying event for all Grade-9 students.

2. According to "What to Do When You Arrive", what is the correct order of steps?

A. Book-Check Desk (hand in books; student librarian checks each for condition and genre and gives one green token per accepted book) → Token Window → Swap Tables (browse, pick, hand in token, keep the book) → Exit Desk, where a second student librarian writes the student's name and new book's title in the small Swap Ledger kept for one year in case of mistakes.
B. Exit Desk first, then Swap Tables, no tokens needed.
C. Pay at the cashier, then choose any book.
D. Ask the teacher to choose a book for you.

3. According to "Care of Each Book", what three small kind things should a student do before bringing a book to the swap, and what do they achieve?

A. Erase pencil notes so the next reader has a clean first look; write a small kind line on the back inside cover (e.g. "This book made me laugh on the bus home. I hope it makes you smile too. — A friend in Grade 7, Dec 2027"); and put a clean sticky note on the cover if any page has a tiny tear, without hiding small damage — so that every book carries to its next home a small whispered hello from a stranger who loved it first.
B. Wrap the book in plastic, write the student's home address inside, and charge ¥5 for the next reader.
C. Tear out any page the student did not like and keep it.
D. Burn the book's old cover and replace it with a new one.

4. What is the plan for books that no one takes by 16:30, and what is forbidden to bring?

A. Books with no taker by 16:30 are thrown into the rubbish; all adult comics and textbooks are welcome.
B. Unsold books are sent back to the printers.
C. All books must be destroyed at the end of the day.
D. Books that find no taker by 16:30 move to the "Share-for-Free Shelf" near the exit, where any student may take them without a token; the forbidden items include: textbooks currently in use this term, books with torn cover or missing pages, books with strong smell or wet marks or yellow food stains, any book marked "私人日记" (private diary), and any adult novel or comic with violent / inappropriate content — such books are gently returned at the Book-Check Desk and the student may still browse but cannot take a book without a token.

5. What is the main message of the closing word from the Library?

A. The school wants students to spend money on many new books.
B. Only Grade 9 students deserve good books.
C. The fair is only for showing off reading skills.
D. A book is perhaps the only object in the school that is richer for being second-hand — every small pencil mark, folded page-corner and kind line in the back cover is a quiet trace of a reader who walked this way before; on 26 December, for four quiet hours, 812 students and one small library let their loved books keep walking this winter, one for one, with no money and only books and kindness, showing that a school at the end of a hard term still knows how to share.
