① Below is Lihua Middle School's 2028 Winter-Break Study-Plan Template. Please read slowly. This plan is a suggestion, not a homework. It is designed by four Grade-8 homeroom teachers (Mr Qin, Ms Lin, Ms Zhao, Mr Gu) together with ten Grade-8 student volunteers, after two school-union meetings in December. No student is required to use any part of this plan. No parent is required to sign it. No teacher will collect it after the break. It exists only to help any student who wishes, gently and privately, to keep a small daily rhythm during the 30-day winter break — and to make sure that rest and family time come first.

📝 The 30-Day Big Shape (suggested, fully adjustable)

Week	Dates	Rough daily "study feeling"	Must-do family / rest items
Week 1	17 — 23 Jan	Soft landing · 1.5—2 hours / day only	At least 2 full days with no study at all
Week 2	24 — 30 Jan	Steady middle · 2—2.5 hours / day	Chinese New Year Eve (26 Jan) = 0 study
Week 3	31 Jan — 6 Feb	Steady middle · 2—2.5 hours / day	Lantern Festival-week family evening free
Week 4	7 — 13 Feb	Gentle taper-up · 2.5—3 hours / day	At least 1 full day completely screen-free
Last 2 days	14 — 15 Feb	Soft return · 1.5 hours / day only	Early sleep both nights, before 22:00

- Study does not include shop-tutoring classes. If you attend any outside class, count half its minutes toward the daily total.
- Maximum any single day: 3 hours of self-study total, no matter what week. Any more is not admired here; it is gently discouraged.
- Minimum any single day: 0 minutes is allowed. A rest day is a real day.

📋 The 8-Zone Daily Card (the main working tool)

Each suggested study day uses one A5 paper card divided into 8 small zones. Each zone is about 15 minutes. Students colour in a small dot when each zone is done.

Zone	Suggested content (15 min each)	Notes
1. English — speak	Read aloud one textbook paragraph slowly, twice	Phone may record your voice; delete after
2. English — write	Copy 8 new words into the vocabulary ring-book, 1 simple sentence each	No English dictionary app — use paper dictionary if possible
3. Chinese — read	Read 1,500 characters of any book you chose	Not a textbook; a real book you like
4. Chinese — write	Write 6 lines about "today" in a small notebook	Nobody reads this but you
5. Maths — one question	One single "slow" maths question, worked out on paper	Stop when done; do not chain 5 questions
6. Physics / Chemistry — re-read	Re-read 1 textbook page of the term just ended, quietly	Underline 1 sentence you now understand better
7. Break zone	Stand up, drink warm water, look outside 90 seconds	Must do; not optional
8. Free zone	Anything — drawing, piano, mahjong with Grandpa, folding laundry, walking the dog	Not study; rest is the point

- Daily minimum used zones: zero. A student may skip the whole card any day.
- Daily maximum used zones: 8 zones = 2 hours. Do not squeeze a 9th zone.
- Zone 7 "Break zone" is required on any day that uses more than 2 study zones. Even in holiday, small breaks protect small eyes.

🕑 The 14:00 Review Window (optional but kindly suggested)

For any student who wishes to keep one small steady anchor, the school suggests using 14:00 — 14:45 (45 minutes) every non-festival day as a quiet private review window.

Time	Activity
14:00 — 14:05	Drink warm water, sit down, set a paper timer for 40 minutes
14:05 — 14:35	Do one subject only — not three, not two — one subject
14:35 — 14:45	Write 3 lines in notebook: "Today I understood … / still not sure about … / nice small feeling …"
After 14:45	Close the book fully. No "just one more". Window is closed.

- Music off during this window; room light above 300 lux if possible.
- No phone on the desk; place it in another room.
- If you miss the window one day, do not make it up the next day. Miss it gently and move on.

🧘 The 3-Rest Rule (non-negotiable)

Even the most serious student at Lihua Middle School must keep three rest guarantees during the 30-day winter break.

#	Rest guarantee	Details
1	Big Family Days — no study	25 Jan Xiaonian, 26 Jan CNY Eve, 27 Jan Day 1, 11 Feb Lantern Festival = 4 full no-study days
2	1 Full Screen-Free Day per Week	One chosen day (or rolling) each week with no phone, no computer, no TV: 4 full screen-free days in the break
3	Sleep Before 22:30, 22:00 on the final two nights	14 and 15 Feb must be early nights; body clock returns to school rhythm

A winter break without these three rests, even with excellent study performance, is considered by the school a tired break, not a good break.

📵 Phone, Screen, and Eye Rules (gentle suggestions)

Item	Suggestion
Daily screen (non-study)	≤ 90 minutes
Study-related screen	Only for dictionary check or teacher group notice — not for videos

Phone next to pillow	Strongly discouraged; put 2 m from bed
Outdoor light	At least 40 min per day, even in cold weather (coat + scarf)
Chinese-New-Year red packets on phone	Please pause after receiving; avoid late-night scrolling on 26—27 Jan

✉️ A Small Parent Note (optional to share)

> "Dear Parents of Grade 8, our school would gently like to remind you: please do not add extra homework to your child during this winter break. Six hours of study a day will not make your child better than three hours of study a day — it will only make her tired. Please let your child sleep late sometimes, play mahjong with Grandpa, help wash the New Year dumplings, and walk slowly in a park for 40 minutes. A well-rested Grade-8 student in February usually learns more in one school week than a tired one learns in three. Thank you for trusting this small, quiet plan. — Mr Qin on behalf of the Grade-8 Homeroom Team, 25 December 2027"

❓ Frequently Gently-Asked Questions

Q1. Will the homeroom teacher collect this plan after the break?
A1. No. Nothing is collected. No one scores it. No one will read your private card.

Q2. Will a student without this plan be punished on 16 February?
A2. No. This plan is fully optional. Some students do wonderfully with no plan at all.

Q3. May a student share the card daily with a parent?
A3. Yes, if the student wishes. But parents are asked not to demand to see it; this is a student-owned tool.

Q4. May a student borrow extra 8-Zone A5 cards?
A4. Yes, from the Student Affairs Office on 15 January between 12:30 and 13:00. Bring your student card; no sign-up needed.

Q5. What if the plan makes me feel more tired, not less?
A5. Stop using it immediately. Any plan that makes rest smaller is the wrong plan. The school believes rest is the root of learning, not its enemy.

1. What is the nature of this 2028 Winter-Break Study-Plan Template?

A. This plan is a suggestion, not a homework — designed by four Grade-8 homeroom teachers (Mr Qin, Ms Lin, Ms Zhao, Mr Gu) together with ten Grade-8 student volunteers after two school-union meetings in December; no student is required to use any part of it, no parent is required to sign it, no teacher will collect it after the break, and it exists only to help any student who wishes, gently and privately, to keep a small daily rhythm during the 30-day winter break (17 Jan — 15 Feb 2028, return 07:40 on Monday 16 February) and to make sure rest and family time come first.
B. The plan is compulsory and every student must submit a completed copy on 16 February 2028.
C. The plan was written by the city education bureau and must be signed by both parents.
D. The plan forces every student to study eight hours every day of the break.

2. According to the 30-day Big-Shape table, what are the weekly study ranges and the minimum / maximum daily limits?

A. Every week requires 8 hours of study daily regardless of any festival.
B. Week 1 is a "soft landing" with 1.5—2 h / day (at least 2 full no-study days); Weeks 2 and 3 are steady middle with 2—2.5 h / day (CNY Eve 26 Jan = 0 study; Lantern-Festival-week evenings free); Week 4 is a gentle taper-up with 2.5—3 h / day (at least 1 fully screen-free day); and the last 2 days 14—15 Feb are a soft return with 1.5 h / day only and early sleep before 22:00. Maximum any single day is 3 hours of self-study total, not admired above that; minimum is 0 minutes — a rest day is a real day.
C. Students must study at least 5 hours every single day of the break, with no exceptions.
D. There is no upper or lower daily limit and students decide entirely without any numbers.

3. How is the 8-Zone Daily Card structured and what are its required elements?

A. Each suggested study day uses one A5 paper card divided into 8 small zones of about 15 minutes each (English speak, English write, Chinese read, Chinese write, one Maths slow question, re-read one physics/chemistry page, Break zone, Free zone); students colour in a small dot when each zone is done; daily minimum used zones is zero (a student may skip the card entirely any day); daily maximum is 8 zones = 2 hours (do not squeeze a 9th zone); and Zone 7 "Break zone" — stand up, drink warm water, look outside 90 seconds — is required on any day that uses more than 2 study zones, because even in holiday small breaks protect small eyes.
B. The card has 20 zones and students must finish every zone each day without breaks.
C. The card is digital only, must be submitted online daily, and is graded by the teacher.
D. The card bans all non-study activities, including family meals.

4. What three rest guarantees are required by the 3-Rest Rule?

A. Students must skip all family events to study more during holidays.
B. Even the most serious student must keep three rest guarantees: (1) Big Family Days — no study: 25 Jan Xiaonian, 26 Jan CNY Eve, 27 Jan Day 1, 11 Feb Lantern Festival (4 full no-study days); (2) 1 Full Screen-Free Day per Week — one chosen day (or rolling) each week with no phone, computer, or TV (4 full screen-free days in the break); (3) Sleep Before 22:30, and 22:00 on the final two nights of 14 and 15 Feb so the body clock returns to school rhythm; a winter break without these three rests, even with excellent study performance, is considered by the school a "tired break" not a "good break".
C. Students are required to stay up until midnight on CNY Eve to study extra.
D. Sleep rules apply only to Grade 9 students and not to Grade 8 students.

5. What is the main message of the school's gentle parent note?

A. Parents are encouraged to add four hours of extra homework per day during the winter break.
B. Parents are asked not to add extra homework during the winter break because six hours a day will not make a child better than three hours — only tired; parents are asked to let their child sleep late sometimes, play mahjong with Grandpa, help wash New Year dumplings, and walk slowly in a park for 40 minutes, because a well-rested Grade-8 student in February usually learns more in one school week than a tired one learns in three, and the school thanks families for trusting this small, quiet plan.
C. Parents must track every 15-minute zone and punish missed ones.
D. Parents must rank their child against classmates daily on WeChat.
