中考英语完形填空：运动会跑步

完形填空原文

Our school sports day was in October. I had signed up for the 800-metre run. To be honest, I was not a very good runner. I ran slowly and often got out of 1 quickly. But my PE teacher said everyone should try at least once. So I decided to 2 it a try.

Two weeks before the race, I started to practise. Every afternoon after school, I ran around the playground. At first, I could only run two laps before I had to stop. My legs felt heavy and my heart beat fast. I wanted to 3, but I thought of my teacher's words and kept going. Gradually, I could run a little further each day.

On the day of the race, I stood at the starting line with the other runners. My hands were 4. "Ready? Go!" the teacher shouted. We all started running. I tried to keep a steady pace and not run too fast at the beginning. Some runners passed me in the first minute. I felt a little discouraged, but I told myself to focus on my own race.

By the second lap, I was tired. My breath came in short 5. But I remembered my training. I had run this far many times. I could do it. I kept my eyes on the track ahead and kept moving. One by one, I passed a few runners who had started too fast and were now slowing down.

When I saw the finish line, I gathered all my 6 and ran as fast as I could. The crowd was cheering. I crossed the line and bent over, hands on my knees, breathing hard. I did not win. I came in fifth. But when I looked up, I saw my classmates running towards me with big smiles. "You did it! You finished!" they shouted.

That moment, I did not care about the 7. What mattered was that I had tried my best and never stopped. The PE teacher patted my shoulder and said, "Well done. The real victory is not always coming first. It is about overcoming yourself." I will always 8 that race. It taught me that with determination and practice, we can achieve more than we think. We do not have to be the best to feel 9. Running that race changed my 10 about sports. It is not only for the fastest — it is for everyone who is willing to try. We just need to do our best.
