中考英语完形填空：学骑滑板

完形填空原文

My best friend Lin Kai got a new skateboard for his birthday. He asked me if I wanted to learn how to ride it. I had never tried skateboarding before, but I said yes. We went to the park where the ground was flat and 1.

Lin Kai showed me the basics first. "Put one foot on the board and push with the other," he said. "Keep your balance." It sounded easy, but when I tried, the board shot out from under my feet. I 2 on the ground. My hands stung a little. Lin Kai helped me up and said, "Everybody falls at first. Try again."

I got back on the board. This time I pushed more gently. The board moved forward. I felt a moment of excitement — I was actually moving! But then I lost my balance and fell again. My 3 was bruised, but I was not seriously hurt. Lin Kai said I was making progress. "Each fall teaches you something," he said. "You are learning how not to fall."

After many tries, I could finally ride for a few metres without falling. The feeling of the wind in my face was amazing. I felt so 4. I had done something I thought I could never do. Lin Kai cheered and gave me a high-five. "See? I knew you could do it!"

That afternoon we practised for two hours. By the end, I could turn a little and ride slowly around the park. I was still not as good as Lin Kai, but I had improved a lot. He said we could practise again next weekend. I could not 5.

On the way home, I thought about what I had learned. Learning something new is never easy. There will be falls and 6. But if we keep trying and never give up, we will get better. The skateboard had taught me that 7 is the key to success. Every expert was once a beginner. I could not wait to tell my parents about my new 8. Maybe they would let me get a skateboard of my own one day. For now, I was just happy to have a friend who was willing to 9 me and help me learn. That is what real friends do — they encourage us to try new things and celebrate our 10 with us.
