中考英语完形填空：参加科学展

完形填空原文

Last week, our school held a science fair. Students could show their own science projects. I had been working on a project about plants and light for a month. I wanted to 1 how different colors of light affect plant growth.

I set up a small experiment at home. I put three bean plants under red, blue, and green light. I watered them every day and wrote down what I 2. After four weeks, the plant under blue light grew the fastest. The one under green light grew the slowest. I was excited about my findings and decided to share them at the fair.

On the day of the fair, I brought my plants and my notes to school. Many students and teachers came to look at the projects. At first, I felt a little 3. What if nobody liked my project? But when a teacher stopped at my table and asked me questions, I slowly became more confident. I explained my experiment step by step. She smiled and said my work was very 4.

During the fair, I also walked around to see other projects. One student had made a simple robot. Another had built a model of the solar system. I was 5 by how creative everyone was. We all had different ideas, but we all shared the same love for science.

At the end of the day, the teachers chose the best projects. I did not win first prize, but I got a certificate for "Best Observation." I was very happy. For me, the most important thing was not winning but 6 something new and sharing it with others.

The science fair taught me that learning is not just about books and exams. It is about asking questions, doing experiments, and 7 your own answers. Science is everywhere around us — we just need to be curious.

I plan to take part in the science fair again next year. I want to try a new project, perhaps something about 8. My teacher said she would help me find a good topic. I am already looking forward to it.

If you have a chance to join a science fair, do not 9 it. It is a great way to learn, make friends, and discover what you are interested in. Remember: every scientist started as a curious 10 who was not afraid to ask "why."
