中考英语完形填空：暑假读书会

完形填空原文

This summer, my best friend Wang Lin started a reading club in our neighbourhood. She put up a notice on the community board, inviting anyone who liked books to 1.

At first, only four of us came. We met every Wednesday afternoon at Wang Lin's home. Each week, one person would choose a book and 2 it to the group. Then we would all read it and discuss it the following week. It was a simple idea, but it worked very well.

The first book we read was "Charlotte's Web." I had read it before, but reading it again as a teenager gave me a completely 3 feeling. When I was younger, I only cared about the story. This time, I noticed the beautiful language and the deep message about friendship and sacrifice. Our discussion that week lasted for two hours because everyone had so much to 4.

As the weeks went by, more people heard about our club and wanted to join. By the end of July, we had twelve 5. Some were our classmates, and some were younger children from the neighbourhood. Wang Lin suggested that we let the younger ones pick easier books sometimes, so that everyone could participate equally. I thought this was a very 6 idea.

Reading together was different from reading alone. When I read by myself, I sometimes skipped parts I did not understand. But in the group, someone always had a good explanation. We helped each other understand 7 passages and learned new vocabulary together. I realised that sharing ideas could make reading much more enjoyable.

The reading club also improved my 8 skills. In the beginning, I was shy and did not like talking in front of others. But the friendly atmosphere encouraged me to express my thoughts. By August, I could share my opinions clearly and 9 without feeling nervous.

The summer reading club was one of the best experiences of my holiday. I read ten books in total and made several new friends. Wang Lin said she would continue the club during the school year, and I was the first to say 10. I believe that reading brings people together in a special way.
