中考英语完形填空：第一次洗碗

完形填空原文

Last week, my mother was not feeling well. She had a headache and needed to rest. So I offered to help with the housework. "Let me wash the dishes," I said. My mother looked 1 and agreed.

I had never washed dishes before. I thought it would be easy — just add soap and rinse with water. But when I stood in front of the sink, I realised it was not that 2. There were plates, bowls, cups, and chopsticks. The oil on the plates was sticky and hard to remove. I had to scrub each item carefully.

I filled the sink with warm water and added dish soap. Bubbles formed quickly. I put the first plate into the water and started rubbing. The oil 3 slowly. I had to use more force than I had expected. My hands soon became wrinkled from the warm water. I wondered how my mother did this every day without 4.

After washing about half of the dishes, I felt my back starting to ache. I had been standing for twenty minutes. I wanted to 5 and rest, but I told myself to finish the job. My mother was resting, and I did not want to disappoint her. I took a deep breath and continued.

Finally, I rinsed all the dishes with clean water and placed them on the drying rack. When I looked at the pile of clean dishes, I felt a sense of 6. I had completed something I had never done before. I went to tell my mother. She smiled and said, "Thank you, dear. You did a great job. I'm proud of you." Her words made me feel even better.

From that day on, I began to help with the dishes more often. I realised that housework is not easy and that my mother 7 a lot every day. I should not take her work for granted. Now I try to share the housework and make her life a little easier. A small action can show our 8 and gratitude to our parents. I will 9 helping at home. After all, we are part of the family and should 10 our share of the work.
