中考英语完形填空：养小金鱼

完形填空原文

For my birthday, my father bought me a small fish tank with five goldfish. I was very happy and promised to take good care of them. But I soon learned that keeping fish was not as 1 as I had thought.

The fish tank needed to be cleaned regularly. I had to change the water once a week. The first time I did it, I poured tap water directly into the tank. My father stopped me and said, "Tap water contains chlorine. You need to 2 the water for a day before putting it in the tank. Otherwise, it might harm the fish." I had no idea that such a small 3 could make a big difference.

Feeding the fish was also important. My father said I should not give them too much food. "A little each time is enough," he said. "If you give them too much, the 4 food will dirty the water and make the fish sick." I used to think that more food meant more love, but I was wrong. I learned to feed them only a small pinch of food twice a day.

One morning, I noticed that one fish was swimming slowly and staying at the bottom of the tank. It did not 5 when I tapped on the glass. I was worried. I quickly searched online and found that the fish might be sick. I told my father, and we went to the pet shop. The shop owner said the fish might have too much ammonia in the water. He gave us some medicine and advised us to clean the tank more often. We followed his 6, and after a few days, the fish became active again. I was so relieved!

Taking care of the fish taught me responsibility. I had to remember to feed them, clean the tank, and watch for any signs of 7. Sometimes I wanted to skip the cleaning, but I knew the fish depended on me. I could not let them down.

Now my goldfish are healthy and swimming happily. When I look at them, I feel a sense of 8. They are not just pets — they are living creatures that need our care and attention. I have learned that every life deserves respect, no matter how small. I will continue to take good care of them and 9 what I have learned to others who want to keep fish. Responsible pet ownership is a 10 we should all understand.
