中考英语完形填空：学滑冰

完形填空原文

During the winter holiday, my cousin invited me to go ice skating. I had never tried it before, and I was both excited and a little nervous. The skating rink was in a large shopping mall, and it was packed with people enjoying the ice.

We rented a pair of skates. I put them on and stood up carefully. The blades felt strange under my feet. I could barely stand, let alone 1. My cousin, who had been skating for years, held my arm and led me onto the ice.

"Relax," she said. "Bend your knees a little and keep your balance. Don't look down at your feet — look 2." I tried to follow her advice, but my legs were shaking. I held onto the side rail and moved slowly along the edge.

After a while, I felt a bit more confident. I let go of the rail and took a few steps. Immediately, my feet slipped, and I fell on the ice. It was cold and hurt a little, but I was not 3. My cousin helped me up and said, "Everybody falls when they first learn. The important thing is to get up and try again."

I got up and tried again. And again. By the end of the first hour, I had fallen at least ten times. But each time I fell, I learned something. I learned to shift my weight, to move my feet in a "V" shape, and to use my arms for 4.

Gradually, I could skate a short distance without falling. The feeling of gliding on the ice was amazing. It was like 5, but on a smooth, cold surface. I could feel the wind on my face as I moved forward.

My cousin taught me how to stop. "Turn your feet sideways and press the blades into the ice," she said. I tried it, and it worked! Stopping was almost as hard as starting, but I finally 6 it.

When it was time to leave, I did not want to go. I had so much fun! My cousin said we could come back next week. I could not wait to 7 again.

The next day, my legs were sore. My mother said it was normal after trying a new sport. She suggested that I rest and drink plenty of water. I did, and by the third day, I felt much better.

Learning to ice skate taught me that new skills take time. I could not expect to be perfect on the first day. But with 8 and practice, I could improve. This lesson applies to many things in life — studying, sports, or even making friends.

I plan to go skating every week this winter. Maybe by the end of the season, I will be able to skate backwards or even do a simple spin. For now, I am happy to glide forward and enjoy the 9 of the ice beneath my feet. Skating has become one of my favourite winter 10.
