中考英语完形填空：学习急救知识

完形填空原文

Last month, our school invited a nurse from the local hospital to teach us first aid. She said that everyone should learn basic first aid because you never know when you might need it. I was 1 to learn something that could help save lives.

The nurse started with how to help someone who is choking. She used a dummy to demonstrate. "First, stand behind the person and make a fist with one hand. Place it above their belly button, then use your other hand to pull 2 quickly," she said. We took turns practising on the dummy. My first try was too gentle. The nurse said we needed to use more force to be effective.

Next, we learned about cuts and bleeding. The nurse said that for most small cuts, we should 3 the wound with a clean cloth and apply pressure for several minutes. "Never use your bare hands if you can avoid it," she warned. "Use gloves or a clean towel to protect yourself from germs." We also learned that we should raise the injured part above the heart if possible, as this helps 4 the blood flow.

We also learned CPR for someone whose heart has stopped. The nurse said that in such an emergency, every second 5. We should call for help first, then start chest compressions. She showed us the correct position and rhythm. "Push hard and fast, about 100 to 120 times per minute," she said. It was tiring to practise, but the nurse said that doing CPR correctly could double or triple the person's chance of 6.

At the end of the class, the nurse gave us a booklet with first aid tips. She said, "I hope you never need to use these skills, but if you do, you will be 7 that you learned them." I put the booklet in my school bag. My mother was glad when I told her about the class. She said our family should have a first aid kit at home. I offered to help her 8 one.

Learning first aid made me feel more responsible. I used to think that helping in emergencies was only for doctors and nurses. Now I know that ordinary people can make a real 9 if they act quickly and correctly. I will review the booklet from time to time to keep the knowledge 10 in my mind. You never know when you might need it.
