中考英语完形填空：加入学校社团

完形填空原文

At the beginning of each school year, our school holds a club fair. Dozens of clubs set up tables in the playground and try to attract new 1. This year, I decided to join one.

I walked around the fair and looked at the different options. There was a drama club, a photography club, a robotics club, a chess club and many more. Each table had colourful posters and enthusiastic students explaining what their club did. It was hard to 2 because everything looked interesting.

My friend suggested the basketball club, but I was not tall enough to play well. Another friend recommended the art club, but I could barely draw a straight line. Then I noticed a small table in the corner with a sign that read "School Newspaper Club." A boy was sitting there 3, with no one else around.

I walked over and asked, "What do you do in this club?" His eyes lit up. "We write articles, take photos and design the school newspaper. We report on school events, interview teachers and students, and 4 share important news with the whole school." It sounded exciting. I had always loved writing, and this seemed like a great chance to 5 my skills.

I signed up on the spot. At the first meeting, I met the other members. There were only eight of us, but everyone was passionate about writing and storytelling. Our advisor, Mr. Zhao, told us that running a newspaper required teamwork, creativity and 6. "You must meet deadlines, check your facts and always be fair in your reporting," he said.

My first assignment was to write about the school sports day. I interviewed athletes, took notes and wrote a five-hundred-word article. It took me three drafts before Mr. Zhao was 7. "Good writing requires rewriting," he said. I was tired but proud when I saw my article 8 in the school newspaper.

Joining the newspaper club was one of the best decisions I have made. It taught me to observe the world more carefully and to 9 my thoughts clearly. I have also made great friends who share my love for writing. If you have not joined a club yet, I strongly 10 it. You never know what talents you might discover.
