中考英语完形填空：学做书签

完形填空原文

In our art class last week, our teacher Mrs. Chen taught us how to make bookmarks. She said that a handmade bookmark could make reading more 1. I was excited to try because I love reading and often use a piece of paper to mark my place.

First, we needed some materials: coloured cardboard, scissors, glue, and some decorative items like ribbons and stickers. Mrs. Chen showed us several 2 of bookmarks — some were simple rectangles, others were shaped like animals or flowers. I decided to make one shaped like a leaf, because autumn had just begun and leaves were falling 3 the trees.

I cut the cardboard into a leaf shape carefully. It was not easy — my first cut was uneven and I had to start again. "Don't 4. Take your time," Mrs. Chen said gently. Her words encouraged me. On my second try, the shape looked much better.

Then I decorated the bookmark. I drew some veins on the leaf with a green pen and added a small ribbon at the top. I wanted to write a favourite 5 on it. I chose "Books are bridges to new worlds." When I finished, I felt proud of my work. It wasn't perfect, but it was 6 because I had made it myself.

Mrs. Chen said we could make more bookmarks as gifts. I made two more — one for my best friend and one for my mother. My mother loves reading too. When I gave her the bookmark, she smiled and said she would use it 7 when she read her favourite novels.

Making bookmarks has become one of my hobbies now. Whenever I have free time, I like to create new designs. I have made bookmarks of different shapes and colours. Some of my classmates have asked me to 8 them how to make bookmarks. I feel happy to share my skills with others.

A simple bookmark can bring joy to both the maker and the receiver. If you enjoy reading, why not try making your own bookmark? It's easy, fun, and you will have a 9 tool to use every time you open a book. Who knows? You might 10 a new hobby that you love!
