First, she showed me how to crack the eggs into a bowl. I was too 3 and broke the first egg onto the table. Mum laughed and said, "Don't worry. Everyone makes mistakes at the beginning." I tried again, and this time I did it 4.

Next, I washed the tomatoes and cut them into pieces. Mum reminded me to be careful with the knife. I held it 5 and cut slowly. Then she asked me to heat the oil in the pan. When the oil was hot, I poured the eggs in. They sizzled and turned golden quickly. I stirred them with a spatula and felt like a real 6.

After that, I added the tomatoes and some salt, sugar, and soy sauce. The kitchen was filled with a wonderful 7. A few minutes later, the dish was ready. I put it on a plate and carried it to the dining table.

My father took the first bite. "Not bad at all!" he said with a big smile. My little brother liked it too and asked for a 8 serving. I felt so happy and proud. All the effort was worth it.

Mum said cooking was an important life 9. She told me that knowing how to cook would help me in the future. I agreed. From that day on, I made a plan to learn one new dish every week.
