中考英语完形填空：假期整理房间

完形填空原文

On the third day of the holiday, my mother looked at my messy room and shook her head. "You really need to 1 your room," she said. "It looks like a disaster zone." I looked around and had to agree. Books, clothes, and toys were everywhere.

I started with my desk. There were piles of old papers, broken pens, and empty snack bags. I 2 the useless things into a big garbage bag and organized the rest neatly. I found some old exam papers from last year and realized how much I had 3 since then.

Next, I moved to my bookshelf. I took out all the books and sorted them by subject. I put my English books together, my math books together, and my science books together. I also found a novel that my friend had 4 me two months ago. I had totally forgotten about it. I made a note to return it to her.

The hardest part was my closet. I had so many clothes that the door could 5 close. I decided to pick out the ones I no longer wore. Some were too small for me — I had grown a lot this year. Mum said we could 6 them to younger children in the community. I thought that was a great idea.

After three hours of hard work, my room looked completely 7. The floor was clean, the desk was tidy, and everything was in its proper place. I opened the window to let fresh air in. Standing there, I felt a wonderful sense of 8.

Mum came in and was pleasantly surprised. "I can't believe this is the same room!" she said. Dad also came to look and gave me a thumbs up. Their praise made me feel 9.

I learned something important that day. A clean and organized space can make you feel calm and focused. From now on, I will spend a few minutes every day to keep my room 10. It's a small habit, but it can make a big difference in life.
