中考英语完形填空：给远方笔友写信

完形填空原文

I have a pen pal named Tom. He lives in London, England. We started writing to each other two years ago when our schools became 1 schools. Although we have never met in person, we have become close friends.

During the holiday, I decided to write Tom a long letter to tell him about my life in China. I sat at my desk, picked up a pen, and began to 2.

First, I told him about the National Day holiday and how Chinese people celebrate it. I described the flag-raising ceremony, the fireworks, and the family dinners. I also 3 some photos of our celebrations. I hoped he would find Chinese culture interesting.

Then I wrote about my daily life at school. I told him about our morning exercises, the class meetings, and the after-school clubs. Tom once said that Chinese students study much 4 than British students. I explained that although we have a lot of homework, we also have time for sports and hobbies.

I also asked Tom some questions. I was 5 about life in England. What do British students eat for lunch? Do they wear school uniforms? What do they do after school? I have always wanted to visit London and see Big Ben and the Thames River with my own eyes.

Writing the letter took me about an hour. When I finished, I read it again carefully to check for any 6. I wanted my English to be correct and natural. After making a few changes, I felt 7 with it.

I put the letter in an envelope, wrote Tom's 8 on the front, and stuck a stamp on it. The next day, I went to the post office and sent it. The lady there told me it would take about two weeks to arrive.

Now I am waiting 9 for Tom's reply. I wonder what he will tell me about his life. Writing letters may be slower than sending emails, but there is something 10 about receiving a handwritten letter from a friend far away.
