中考英语完形填空：学做中国结挂饰

完形填空原文

During the Spring Festival last year, our art teacher, Mr. Zhang, taught us how to make Chinese knot ornaments. He said Chinese knots were a traditional craft and had a long 1. We were all excited to learn.

First, Mr. Zhang showed us the red cords we needed. Each of us got three pieces of cord. "The 2 is important — red stands for good luck," he said. "You must follow the steps carefully." He demonstrated how to make a simple knot. I watched closely but still found it 3. When I tried myself, my fingers got tangled. I almost wanted to give up.

"Don't worry. Everyone 4 at the beginning," Mr. Zhang said kindly. He came to my desk and helped me step by step. I practiced again and again. Slowly, I began to understand the 5. My first knot didn't look perfect, but I was happy that I had finished it.

In the next two classes, we learned to make different 6. Some students made fish shapes, and others made flower patterns. Each kind had its own meaning. I made a small Chinese knot that could hang on my school bag. My classmates said it looked nice. I felt 7 of myself.

Making Chinese knots taught me that learning something new takes patience. We cannot 8 to become good at everything at once. With practice, we can do better. Now I keep my first Chinese knot in a box. Every time I see it, I 9 the fun I had in that art class and smile. I think traditional crafts are worth 10.
