中考英语完形填空：期中考试前的复习计划

完形填空原文

The mid-term exam would start in five days. I felt a little 1, but I knew I had to prepare well. Last Saturday morning, I sat down at my desk and made a 2 plan for the coming week. It was not the same as before.

First, I listed all the subjects I needed to review: Chinese, math, English, and science. Each subject needed different 3. For math, I had to do more practice problems. For English, I should 4 the new words and grammar rules. I decided to spend at least two hours every day on revision.

The next day, I 5 my plan. In the morning, I reviewed Chinese and did some reading. In the afternoon, I worked on math problems. Sometimes I felt tired, but I didn't give up. I also asked my classmates for 6 when I had questions. They were very kind and explained things clearly.

On Wednesday evening, I did a 7 test to check my progress before the real exam. I found that I was better at math than before, but my English vocabulary still needed more work. So I spent the last two days mainly 8 English words.

The night before the exam, I went to bed early. I knew that enough 9 was important for a clear mind. When the exam day came, I felt confident because I had done my best to get 10.
