参考范文

Last Saturday, I was riding the bus when I noticed a foreign tourist looking confused and worried. He kept checking his phone and glancing at the bus map, but he clearly couldn't read the Chinese characters.

I walked over and asked in English, "Do you need any help?" His face lit up. He told me he was trying to get to the City Museum but had taken the wrong bus. I helped him get off at the next stop, showed him which bus to take and even wrote down the Chinese name of his destination on a piece of paper.

He shook my hand and said, "Thank you so much! Chinese people are so kind." I felt a warm glow inside — knowing that my English skills and a few minutes of my time had made a real difference.

This experience reminded me that kindness needs no passport. A helping hand can cross any language barrier.

全文翻译

上周六，我坐公交车时注意到一个外国游客看起来困惑又着急。他不停地看手机和公交线路图，但明显看不懂中文字。

我走过去用英语问："你需要帮助吗？"他的脸一下亮了起来。他告诉我他想去市博物馆，但坐错了车。我帮他在下一站下车，告诉他该坐哪路车，甚至把目的地的中文名写在一张纸上。

他握了握我的手说："非常感谢你！中国人太好了。"我心里涌起一股温暖——知道我的英语技能和几分钟的时间真正帮到了别人。

这次经历让我想到，善意不需要护照。一只伸出的援手可以跨越任何语言障碍。
