完形填空原文

Our community center offered a free pottery class during the holiday. My mother encouraged me 1 it a try, so we went there together on Saturday morning.

The pottery teacher, a young woman named Ms. Xu, greeted us with a bright smile. She said pottery was one of the 2 art forms in human history. I was curious 3 how people thousands of years ago made their bowls and plates.

Ms. Xu gave each of us a ball of wet clay. She showed us how 4 it flat with our hands and then shape it into a plate. The clay felt cold and soft. 5 I pressed too hard, the plate became too thin and broke.

"Take it easy," Ms. Xu said gently. "The clay can feel your mood. If you are calm, 6 work will be smoother." I took a deep breath and started again. This time, I pressed the clay more 7 and the plate kept its shape.

The most exciting step was decorating. I used a small stick to carve a flower pattern on the edge. It wasn't as 8 as the teacher's sample, but I was satisfied.

Ms. Xu told us that the plates needed to be dried and then baked in a kiln. She promised 9 them back to us in two weeks. I could 10 wait to see my finished plate. This class made me fall in love with pottery.
