中考英语完形填空：写日记记录秋天

完形填空原文

Our Chinese teacher once said, "The best way to remember life is to write it down." 1 by her words, I started keeping a diary this autumn.

Every evening after finishing my homework, I would spend about fifteen minutes 2 about what happened during the day. At first, I didn't know what to write. My daily life seemed too 3 to be interesting.

But gradually, I discovered beauty in small things. One day, I wrote about a golden leaf that 4 onto my shoulder on the way to school. Another day, I described the smell of roasted sweet potatoes from a street vendor. These little moments made my diary 5 and vivid.

My favorite entry was about a rainy afternoon. I sat by the window and watched the raindrops 6 down the glass. The world outside looked blurry and dreamlike. I wrote, "Rain is nature's way of washing the world clean so that everything can start 7."

After one month, I was surprised to find that I had written over thirty entries. Reading them again, I 8 that autumn was not just a season of falling leaves. It was also a season full of warmth, beauty, and quiet joy.

My teacher read some of my entries and said they were 9 written. She encouraged me to keep going. I plan to continue this habit 10 I grow up. A diary is like a time machine that can take you back to any moment you want to revisit.
